Fojana Single Cru Rebula 2019

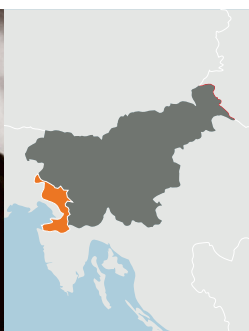

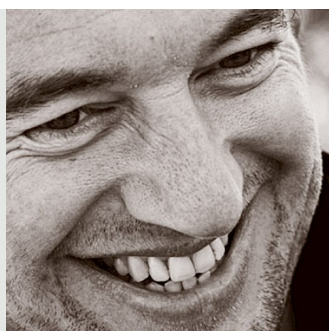

Edi Simčič

The 2019 Fojana Rebula was aged for 10 months in 15% new French barriques. It comes in at 13.1% alcohol. Solidly built, this seems reasonably deep, expressive and generally well crafted. There's a lingering and fresh finish, with the fruit always lifted and the oak always in control. It is impeccably balanced and lovely overall. It seems likely to hold throughout the rest of this decade, more or less. Whether it can also improve is another question, one that it needs to answer. Overall, though, it's a fine performance...
