

Winemaker: Antonio Sanguinetti
Generation: 2nd

ANTONIO SANGUINETI

Morellino di Scansano

Morellino di Scansano is a rich ruby red, with lively purple highlights. The bouquet is full of character and pleasantness, width and depth, with fruity, floral and spicy notes mixed with hints of underwood. The pleasantness on the palate is completed by persistence and balance: the tannins are well defined but elegant, subtle and balanced, together with the freshness, by a fruity roundness.

Food pairing: with rich pasta dishes and red meat or game main dishes.

Serving temperature: 16-18°C

Recommended glass: a large Bordeaux-style glass.

WINEMAKER BIOGRAPHY

A Tuscan through and through, Antonio Sanguinetti began crafting wine at age sixteen on his family's farm near Siena. Today, he's known on both sides of the Atlantic as an energetic producer with a true zest for life. One of our two partners in Italy, Antonio has been woven into the fabric of August Imports for the past twenty years.

ENOLOGIST

Antonio Sanguinetti

TASTING NOTES

Nose Black pepper with delicious notes of bitter espresso and sweet spice as well as dried prune and fig, with hints of fresh herb. Giving the wine chance to rest and breathe allowed the complexity of this wine time to develop and express itself.

Palate The mouth gripping tannins suddenly softened, and the balanced acidity completed perfectly the ripe cherry and raspberry. The tertiary aromas flourished both on the nose and the palate.

VINEYARD & VINIFICATION

Vineyard Location	Morellino di Scansano DOCG, Tuscany
Vineyard Size	2 ha
Varietals List	85% Sangiovese 15% Alicante. Malvasia % Nera. Canaiolo. Colorino
Elevation	350 m
Maturation Summary	Bottled for months
Alcohol	13.0 %
Annual Production	10,000 bottles

AUGUSTIMPORTS

WINES · SPIRITS · INNOVATIONS

REGION

TUSCANY

One of the most recognizable regions in the world, Tuscany has an enological history dating back to the era of the Etruscans. Like Piedmont, Tuscany's daily life is interwoven with its food and wine... In sum, vino is a daily facet of the Tuscan lifestyle. With winding roads, sculpted cypresses, and romantic hilltop towns, Tuscany's beauty is legendary, and for many, Florence - once the epicenter of the Renaissance - provides a cultural heartbeat. That said, while the rolling hills of Colli Fiorentini help form a baseline in the minds of many Americans, the region is also home to Italy's Apennine mountain range (stretching from north to south), the wild, southern Maremma district, and a gorgeous, rugged coastline. In the end, Tuscany is topographically quite diverse, and wine zones range from warm and coastal to surprisingly high, continental, and cool.

As one of Italy's most prolific and historic wine regions, it's no wonder Tuscany has so many dedicated and regulated wines. There are currently 42 DOC's and 11 DOCG's. The latter include, of course, Chianti, Chianti Classico, Brunello di Montalcino and Vino Nobile, all predicated on the single red grape that dominates Tuscan production: Sangiovese. Roughly two-thirds of the vines in Tuscany are devoted to this noble varietal, which also happens to be Italy's most planted grape overall. Beyond this, winemakers have been increasingly supplementing vineyards with Merlot and Cabernet Sauvignon (both with a 300+ year history in the region). For better or worse, white varieties generally take a distant back seat to the reds, with Trebbiano Toscano being the most widely planted and Vernaccia and Vermentino enjoying more prestige.

MORELLINO DI SCANSANO DOCG

While less known outside of Tuscany, with its rich profile of dark cherry and understated tannins, Morellino di Scansano is a style of Sangiovese that could help Americans bridge the gap between the Old World and the New. Hailing from the commune of Scansano - a small, hilltop town in Tuscany's coastal, southwestern Maremma district - Morellino typically possesses a dark ruby color, savory herbal notes, and a rounder, more fruit forward style when compared to many other Tuscan reds. Not only is the climate generally warmer here, but the local Morellino clone of Sangiovese tends to have a denser fruit profile - driven by Morello cherry, wild berry, and pomegranate - along with sweeter tannins.

A bit unusual, the Morellino di Scansano DOC does not exact any aging in oak, however it does require at least 12.5% alcohol, a full percentage higher than many other Sangiovese-driven Rosso designations. (Only the Riserva tier mandates that wine be aged for at least two years, with half that time in the barrel.) The blend must include at least 85% Sangiovese, with the remaining 15% comprised of Italian staples like Canaiolo, Malvasia, and Cilieggiolo. International varieties such as Merlot, Syrah, and Cabernet Sauvignon are also permitted in small quantities.

Proximity to the coast ensures constant sea breezes in Scansano, helping to mitigate the heat of its southern latitude. Since the region was formerly marshland (last filled during the 1930s), lower elevation soils tend to be rich in calcareous marine sediment, providing a nuanced, balanced acidity. Some of the hills around Scansano (rising above 500m) also have volcanic topsoil, which can lend the wines a telltale layer of minerality.

ANTONIO SANGUINETI

Having worked both as a winemaker and a consultant to dozens of producers over the course of his career, Antonio Sanguineti knows more about wine - and specifically Tuscan wine - than just about anyone else we know. His long list of mentors and partners reads like a virtual who's who in Italian enology. Among them are giants Carlo Ferrini, Stefano Chioccioli, and Franco Bernabei. None had a greater influence on him, however, than the legendary Giulio Gambelli. "He was Tuscany," says Antonio, and it's true. Having completed a remarkable 61 vintages and advised the legendary Biondi Santi estate (including their immortal 1955 vintage of Brunello) Dr. Gambelli was arguably the most influential winemaker of his era. Antonio, therefore, was extremely fortunate to grow up in Dr. Gambelli's presence. During the 1970s and 1980s, the enologist was a fixture on the Sanguineti family's estate, visiting every week to help perfect their Chianti Classico. Antonio, who started his formal training with Gambelli at age 16, recalls with pride, "we were winning every type of prize and score back then."

For better or for worse, Antonio's path became more circuitous after that. As happens sometimes in Italian families, there was a disagreement about what to do with the Sanguineti land. A decision was made while Antonio was still young and, in 1995, the Pagliarese estate wound up being sold (to Fèlsina). Despite his love of wine, Antonio was left without a vineyard. As he recalls it, "I owned the knowledge, but not the land." But the accomplished young winemaker, dubbed "Il Maestro" by his colleagues, was not to be deterred. He parlayed his expertise into consulting work, and began a series of partnerships which culminated in the creation of the Antonio Sanguineti brand.

Today, Antonio continues to work with friends to make each of his wines, combining expertise and top-pick grapes. Without the ongoing overhead of an estate, he's able to produce truly outstanding wines for a modest price. These include his Nessun Dorma blend, predicated on rustic, old-vine Sangiovese from the Maremma; Morellino di Scansano, also cultivated near the southern Tuscan coastline; and his Chianti, made in the sun-drenched Val d'Orcia just outside of Montalcino. In addition, as a founding partner, Antonio continues to educate the public and host stateside tasting events with August Imports for a few months out of the year.